

A SCANDAL IN SPAIN CAUSES SENSATION

King is Furious Over the Wedding of His Mother.

Maria Christina Marries Man Whom She Loved Be- fore She Was Compelled for State Reasons to Wed Alfonso's Father.

Madrid, Sept. 29.—A sensational scandal has occurred in the royal family. King Alfonso was discovered that his mother, Maria Christina, during her recent journey to Austria was secretly and morganically married to Her Master of Horse, Count Escosura. The Queen mother years ago plighted her troth with the count and intended to marry him until for state reasons she was compelled to marry Alfonso's father. When Alfonso learned of his mother's marriage, he became wildly enraged and violently abused the Queen ordering her to retire to the provinces or go abroad. The Queen has indignantly refused to obey the young King's orders.

The Second Operation—Secretary
Issues a Statement.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The President's physicians today say that the condition of the wound is satisfactory and that the President's temperature is normal. The patient slept well last night.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Another operation was performed Sunday on the abscess of the left leg of President Roosevelt. In the former operation a simple needle was used to relieve the trouble, but this time the surgeons with a knife made an incision into the small cavity, exposing the bone, which was found to be slightly affected. Dr. Newton M. Shaffer, of New York, a well known bone specialist, joined the president's physicians.

An application of cocaine was used to allay the pain. The President stood the operation very well and subsequently expressed satisfaction at the successful result. Dr. Rixey, the Surgeon General of the Navy performed the operation, assisted by Dr. Lang, the President's regular physician. Dr. O'Reilly, who was also present, is the Surgeon General of the Army. Dr. Edward S. Stitt, another of these present, is in charge of the Naval Museum of Hygiene and Medical school.

The physicians take a rosy view of the President's prospects for getting out again. The physicians say the question now is simply one of the healing of the wound, and reiterate that this will be hastened by the operation made Sunday.

Secretary Cortelyou gave out the following statement:

"Dr. Newton M. Shaffer of New York joined the President's physicians in consultation Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

"The increase in local symptoms and a rise in temperature rendered it necessary to make an incision into the small cavity, exposing the bone, which was found to be slightly affected. Torough drainage is now established and the physicians feel confident that recovery will be uninterrupted.

"The operation was performed by Surgeon General Rixey, assisted by Dr. Lang, and in consultation with Surgeon General O'Reilly and Drs. Shaffer, Urie and Stitt.

"GEORGE B. CORTELYOU
Secretary to the President."

Train Carrying Non-Union Men--Conference With President Mitchell.

Shamokin, Pa., Sept. 29.—Five hundred armed strikers held up the Northern Central miners' accommodation train near Green Ridge this morning and would not allow the trainmen to take twenty non-unionists to work. Shots were fired at the strikers and the latter fired back and cast rocks and clubs into the cars. A dozen inmates were struck with rocks. The train was taken to Mount Carmel and the non-unionists escaped to their homes.

Wilkesbarre, Sept. 29.—All is quiet in this district so far today, and the non-union men who went to work met with no serious resistance.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—The conference of district miners union officials here with John Mitchell is now in progress. The reason is still a mystery, but it is supposed to be due to new developments in the coal situation.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR COAL MINES.

Boston, Sept. 29.—A committee of citizens headed by the publishers of a Boston newspaper, have sought relief in the courts from the present coal shortage and high prices by asking for a receiver for the coal companies and coal carrying roads. Their claim is that the public has a right in the mines.

Mrs. John Houlihan's Aged Father Meets With Tragic Death at Vincennes, Ind.

A special telegram to the Advocate from Vincennes, Ind., Monday afternoon tells of the tragic death of Daniel Lynch as follows:

Daniel Lynch, aged seventy years and father of Mrs. John Houlihan, 322 East Main street, Newark, Ohio, fell from a third story window today, a distance of 50 feet. His daughter, Mrs. Frank A. Yeoman, rushed to his assistance, and he expired in her arms, holding her a choking farewell. Lynch was subject to suffocating spells, and while attempting to open a shutter fell. In 1878 Mr. Lynch was blown on top of a two story brick building in a bomb explosion at Clark and Bross streets, which killed out of the James Coleman and John Miller, prominent citizens. In 1878 Lynch survived the explosion, but a few years later he fell from a second story window, and from the fall he was a cripple for the remainder of his life. Over 1000 copies of "The Fall of Lynch" are sold annually.

TROOPS IN CUBA

Are to Remain a While—Treaties Provided for to Be Made Before the Soldiers Go.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Though recognizing in the request of the Cuban Government for the withdrawal of the remaining American troops in Cuba a very natural desire to remove all traces of foreign occupation, the indications are that the authorities here will order the withdrawal only upon the completion of the permanent treaty contemplated in the Platt amendment.

Both that amendment and the Cuban Constitution provide that a permanent treaty shall be signed between the United States and Cuba, whereby Cuba is not to make any foreign treaties impairing her independence, assume excessive indebtedness, and is to recognize the right of intervention of the United States to protect lives and property and independence; is to validate all the acts of the military occupation; continue the sanitary measures inaugurated; sell or lease to the United States lands for coaling or naval stations and to adjust the title to the Isles of Pines in a subsequent treaty. The United States is to maintain the independence of Cuba, and protect life, property and liberty.

FIGHTING BOB

Sent Up the Great Yangste River to Investigate the Chinese--Evans After the Boxers.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, second in command on the Asiatic station, has been sent up the Yangste river to investigate and report upon the situation in the provinces of China which are about to become the scene of another Boxer uprising.

The navy department received a cablegram from Admiral Evans Sunday stating that he had transferred his flag from the battleship Kentucky to gunboat Helena and sailed from Woonsocket aboard the latter vessel for Ichang, which is the highest point on the river to which a vessel of the Helena's draft can go. Ichang lies about 300 miles from the mouth of the Yangste and is in the province of Hupeh.

About 100 miles to the west is the eastern border of Sze-Chuan province, in which the massacre of native Christians and the destruction of the chapels erected by the missionaries occurred.

ONLY ONE PARTY TO BE IN POWER

Was the Keynote of the Akron Republican Campaign Opening.

The Crowd Largely Consisted of Hired Delegations and Paid Marching Clubs and the Big Expense Bill Was Paid for by the Trusts.

Akron, Ohio, Sept. 29.—The great Republican campaign opening came off in this city Saturday regardless of expense. Money without limit was in evidence in the gorgeous display of street decorations. Streets and houses were literally covered with flags, bunting and campaign glitter. But the crowd was largely made up of hired delegations and paid marching clubs from other cities that cost immense sums of money. The expense of the affair was far in excess of any such demonstration ever witnessed in Ohio. It was all for appearances of course, for anything like hearty enthusiasm of the people was absent. It was the cold, formal gorgeousness that only money expended in unlimited amounts can purchase. There was no sentiment—no enthusiasm—of the kind that the people used to make manifest when they gathered on such occasions. It was plain, too, where the money came from that paid for the expensive decorations, the hired delegations and marching clubs that presented the appearance of an imperial army overawing the people. The trusts paid for it all, and the trusts were well pleased with the whole affair, speeches and all.

The speeches, of which Senator Foraker's was considered the key note, were all of the same tone and character. According to these speeches there must be but one party in this country, and that the Republican party. No other party must ever have control anywhere. The Republican party must be kept in power everywhere and the time-honored Democratic party must be utterly crushed out and annihilated, so that the one party power that the imperialists are striving for shall have no opposition, and so that the trusts, the big monopolists and millionaires shall finally have a government wholly of their own dictation and in which the people shall have no voice whatever.

Such was the real character and meaning of the Republican campaign opening in this city. Serious thinkers, and they are increasing in numbers in Northern Ohio, plainly foresee that the drift of the Republican leaders is wholly in the interest of the combination of capital—the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few—and that absolute, unmolested imperialism is the kind of government they are trying to fasten on this country.

FRESH STORM BURST

Killing Hundreds of People--Damage Running Into Millions in Sicily--More Earthquakes in Mexico.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Central News Rome correspondent wires today that another cyclone believed to have been more terrible than Friday's, has destroyed the towns of Belpasso and Torre Santa Maria in Catania, province of Sicily. Many houses were destroyed, the correspondent says. The cathedral of Belpasso was blown down, crushing many in the ruins. Ships have been blown ashore along the coast and it is feared the death roll will be appalling. People in terror have fled to the mountains.

Syracuse, Sicily, Sept. 29.—A fresh storm burst over the district of Santa Maria Sunday and many houses were destroyed. The storm continues generally throughout Sicily.

It is now believed that 200 persons perished at Modica during the tornado. In one instance a family of ten was drowned in bed. The village of Sortino has been practically destroyed, and 43 persons were drowned. The water rose in the church to a height of 12 feet. Many children lost their lives.

There have been some disgraceful scenes of pillage from the ruins and from bodies, which show the necessity of more troops to keep order.

The total damage as the result of the tornado is expected to amount to over $2,000,000.

JOSEPH BROWNFIELD

Our Ideal Candidate for County Commissioner.

The Democratic party of Licking county presents an exceptionally strong candidate for County Commissioner, this fall, in the person of Mr. Joseph Brownfield. The party and the public are to be congratulated upon the fact that a man so deservedly popular and so well qualified in every way is to be the next Licking County Commissioner. It would be impossible to overestimate the importance of this office, to the taxpayer and to the people generally, and the great necessity of filling it with honest, intelligent, capable men, who will be faithful to the people's interests, and who have the energy and strength of character to stand up for those interests, at all times and under all circumstances. Such a man, unquestionably, is Joseph Brownfield, the Democratic candidate for County Commissioner.

From the levying of taxes to the disbursement of the same, the Board of County Commissioners have more to do with the handling of the people's money than any other class of officials. They determine what the amount of money raised each year, for county purposes, shall be, in the first place; and then they determine how that money shall be expended, for roads, bridges, infirmaries, children's home and all other county necessities. It is plain to see, that to exercise these important functions properly, requires, first of all, a man of integrity; next, a man of good business ability, with good judgment and executive force.

His whole character and record show Mr. Brownfield to be such a man. A man of unquestioned integrity, whose word is as good as his bond, his own successful self-made business career shows him to be possessed of those business abilities and that energy and strength of character that so eminently qualify him for the important office of Commissioner. Thrown upon his own resources at an early age, by the death of his father, the late Hon. Benjamin Brownfield, young Brownfield has fought the battle of life single-handed and alone and he has won the victory. For a number of years, Mr. Brownfield has been engaged in the business of farming and dealing in stock—especially the latter—and he has made a success of both. A man who can buy and sell stock, all over Licking county, for as long a period of time as Mr. Brownfield has, and yet be so generally popular and have such hosts of friends, in both parties as Mr. Brownfield has, certainly has strong points of character. His popularity shows he has merit.

RADICAL DIFFERENCES IN CODE VIEWS OF SENATE AND HOUSE

The Senate has completed its work in committee of the whole on the code and has that document practically as it will pass the upper house. The house code committee is practically through its work and has the bill as it will be presented for consideration of the whole house. There are many radical differences in the two measures, and although the Nash code was taken as a basis for both, the result scarcely resemble each other in outline and are entirely dissimilar in detail.

The Senate bill provides for the election of a mayor, city council, auditor and treasurer, and in cities of over 30,000, police judge and clerk, the appointment by the mayor of the solicitor and a bi-partisan board of four to have charge of the fire, police and health departments. The bill provides for the election of a board of three to have entire charge of the public improvements. It also provides for a library board to be appointed by the mayor.

Mr. Brownfield's long and varied business experience has given him that knowledge of men and affairs, that is essential to the office, all the strength and vigor and ambition of his young manhood; with a judgment that has been ripened by actual contact with practical affairs, in a successful business career of years. He stands the peer of any one in character. His ability cannot be questioned. His kindness of heart and genial nature, make him deservedly popular. So the people expect great things of "Joe" Brownfield, as County Commissioner, and they will not be disappointed.

THE "UNPROTECTED TRUSTS."

(New York World.)
President Roosevelt repeats the pettifogging argument of the monopoly defenders—that the Standard Oil trust and anthracite combine are "unprotected," and hence tariff reduction is no remedy for monopoly. In other words, if 25 per cent. of the monopolies are not "sheltered by the tariff," tariff reduction is no remedy for the 75 per cent. that are sheltered. It is sad to see a strenuously honest President putting forth such rubbish.

But it is not true that the coal and oil trusts are "unprotected." There is a high duty on all the numerous by-products of petroleum, which are so valuable that from a barrel of crude oil, worth for fuel only $1.10, $4 worth of those products—benzene, naphtha, dyes, etc.—are extracted, leaving the refined oil as so much more clear profit. In addition to this the Standard Oil Company gets a rebate, under the Dingley law for all the duties paid on the tin used in its export trade. One order of the standard Oil company this summer for $1,500,000 worth of tin of the American Tin Plate Company was conditioned upon getting the tin for the price at which it could be bought in Wales. In other words, while every private citizen who puts on a tin roof or buys a tea-kettle must pay a tariff-added tax to the tin trust, the Standard Oil company, which declares dividends of 48 per cent., or $4,800,000 a year, gets its tin at the foreign price, and then secures a rebate from the treasury of the 64 per cent. duty!

There is no duty upon anthracite because there is practically no foreign coal of this character. But the duty of 67 cents a ton on bituminous coal does give the anthracite monopoly protection in New England and New York against the abundant soft coal in Nova Scotia.

And these are the two examples upon which President Roosevelt bases his declaration that trust evils cannot be remedied by any change in the tariff laws.

Grove's Black Root Liver Pills.
Made from an old recipe obtained from Black Root. They act on the liver, equal to cod liver oil, and have no bad after effects. No griping, no gas, no constipation. Price 25 cents.

The house bill as it stands provides for the election of the mayor, council, directors of safety, lay, accounts, improvements, a treasurer and the appointment of a board of health and of a library board by the mayor. All officers are to be elected for two years except the solicitor, who is elected for a term of three years.

The Senate does not provide for any merit system in any department, merely suggesting that the officers observe the principle.

The House establishes a merit system in any department under state control, the commission being appointed by the governor. The House also provides for an eight-hour law.

The Senate provides for a re-grant to the Cincinnati Traction company of a 50-year franchise, with five cent fares, and the House committee eliminates this from its report. The House provides for assessing property for improvements by the foot front plan, the Senate on valuation as returned for taxation.

MORE "FREE TRADE VIRUS."

Young Mr. Foss, who is to be the Republican candidate for Congress in the eleventh Massachusetts district, in which his party has an overwhelming majority, has carried the primaries on a platform embodying these propositions:

1. Tariff revision along such lines as will give New England industries fair play and every man a fair chance to earn a living. 2. Reciprocity with Canada and Cuba. 3. Free coal, free iron and free hides.

If Speaker Henderson considered the Iowa idea, which merely hinted at tariff revision in order to uncover the trusts, to be a very dangerous article of "free trade virus" what will he and others who think as he does say to the Boston idea?

When the Republicans of two widely separated districts in which the party majority is practically invincible manifest a determination to revise the tariff and when a Republican president is forced to intimate pretty strongly that such revision is necessary the ultra high protectionists are going to have a good deal of trouble in getting up a free trade scare.

The Democratic State convention of New York will meet on Wednesday at Saratoga. It is expected to be a very lively gathering. The last ticket announced is Chief Justice Parker for governor and ex-Controller Coler for lieutenant governor. In the Tammany list of delegates to the New York State Democratic convention are the names of John G. Carlisle, former secretary of the treasury, and William B. Hornblower, well known in other days as a prominent Cleveland Democrat. The selections are obviously the work of the new Tammany leader, Mr. Murphy, who smiles and asks, "how's that for harmony?" Such a ticket as that, proposed will make politics extremely lively in New York State, and the Democrats would have a very promising outlook for carrying the State.

New York Republicans don't propose to give the trusts any cause for uneasiness, hence that meaningless plank about monopolies and combines in the platform adopted by the Saratoga convention.

In securing the endorsement of the Michigan Republicans, General Alger has again shown that the man with the long pipe generally has the inside track for a Senatorial job.

His Free Will Offering.
"What's that $5 kept out of my salary for?" demanded the employee of the state institution.
"That's your voluntary contribution for campaign purposes," blandly replied the superintendent.

"But it isn't a voluntary contribution. You're not right to hold it out on me. That wasn't in the bargain. I never heard anything about it before. It is a gouge, and I won't stand it!"
"But you have to pay it, you know, or lose your job. Does it go?"
"Yes."

GUESSED MAYOR'S WEIGHT.

Experience of Tom L. Johnson With the Weighing Machine Man.
Not long ago Tom L. Johnson walked past the postoffice and a pet before a man who conducted a weighing machine, says a correspondent of the New York Tribune writing from Cleveland. "I'll cost you a nickel to get weighed, guv," he shouted, "and if I can't guess your weight bear land within three pounds I won't charge you a cent."

"Let you the cigars he can't come within twenty pounds of my weight," said Johnson, turning to a friend.

This was overheard by the "barker," who didn't know the mayor. "Make way for the corpulent gentleman, my good people," he yelled, and Johnson elbowed his way through the crowd. The "barker" then pushed the mayor in the stomach until he said, "Ouch!" poked him in the small of the back, felt of his thighs, pinched his legs, slapped his cheeks and finally made a guess of 255 pounds. Then he hustled his honor into the little basket until the machine groaned and squeaked. "See, guv," he said, "I guessed her right the first shot."

"You're all right," said the mayor. "Here's your nickel." And the crowd howled as Johnson walked off to buy his friend the cigars he had lost.

"Say, do you know who that man was you just weighed?" a man in the crowd asked the machine man.

"That big fat fellow? Naw."

"Mayor Tom."

"The deuce you say?"
Then he dropped his machine, hurried after the mayor and offered to return his nickel, but Johnson threatened to deprive him of his license if he persisted in his generosity, and the incident was closed.

BLIND INVENTOR WINS.

Gets Favorable Decision Against Steel Trust on $5,000,000 Claim.

John Brislin, former roller, who helped Antoine Vinnac, another roller, to invent and patent a table for carrying hot ingots of steel to and from rolls mechanically and in whose favor Judge Bullington has just given a decision against the Carnegie Steel company, is blind and is seventy-five years of age, says a Pittsburg special to the New York Times.

His partner, Vinnac, died two years ago. He left his interest to Brislin. If Brislin lives to secure his rights, he can recover at least $5,000,000 in royalties for infringements on patents. This would fall heaviest on the United States Steel corporation.

Brislin until recently was a janitor in the Bakewell building, but lost his place through loss of sight. John R. Bennett of Bakewell & Burns, attorneys for the Carnegie Steel company, says:

"The case will be appealed in the circuit court of appeals, which meets in Philadelphia in October. We will try to get it ready for this term of court. The court here held the first charge void and infringed. The second was held to be not infringed, and the suit as a whole was dismissed. We think we have good grounds for an appeal. The decision of the court of appeals will be final, and the case will probably be settled some time in the winter."

JUSTICE GRAY'S NOTIONS.

Late Federal Jurist a Great Stickler For Legal Forms.

The late Justice Horace Gray of the United States supreme court, who died a few days ago at his home in Lynn, Mass., was a great stickler for form in court and held strictly to what he called the old regime. At one time he had summoned to court a workman who was brought before him in his shirt sleeves. Justice Gray was shocked by the man's apparent disrespect for the court. Although the case was important, he adjourned the hearing and told the man to appear again properly attired.

While holding court in one of the western counties of his state the judge directed the clerk to adjourn court. The unwary clerk went through the usual formula, beginning "All persons having anything further to do" and ending "God save the commonwealth of Massachusetts." The judge detected the term "a. m.," whereupon he reprimanded the clerk for using the language of an auction room and directed him to adjourn in due form again, "till tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock."

The Great "Specter" of Maine Woods.

The enormous moose that has been the wonder of all sportsmen and the terror of superstitious woodsmen since 1801, says a Bangor (Me.) special to the Philadelphia Press, has again been seen, and people who have always laughed at the stories of "the white moose" and "the specter moose" are beginning to believe that, after all, there is some kind of an overgrown freak wandering around between Lobster lake and Mount Katahdin.

A few days ago a Boston sportsman named M. A. Cushing came down from the Katahdin Iron works region and reported having seen the big moose. Mr. Cushing describes the moose as the largest by far that he has ever seen and of a dirty white color, except for a brown patch under the chin.

FULL TEXT Of the Platform Adopted at the Democratic State Convention.

In state convention assembled, we, the Democrats of Ohio, hereby acknowledge and declare our continued allegiance to the Democratic party of the nation and on national issues reaffirm and endorse the principles laid down in its last national platform adopted at Kansas City, and which was fully and ably represented in the presidential campaign of 1900 by William Jennings Bryan. Regarding those principles as opposed to imperialism and colonialism, as opposed to government by injunction, as opposed to trusts and trust-fostering tariffs, as opposed to financial monopoly and as opposed to all other legalized monopolies and privileges, we condemn every effort to repudiate or ignore them.

In state and municipal affairs we pledge our party to a faithful application of those Democratic principles, to the end that the burdens of taxation may be equalized and home rule and local self-government be established and preserved.

REPUBLICANS ARRAIGNED.

Under the long continued control of the Republican party in this state, monopoly has been fostered and protected; the farmer and the small home owners have been burdened with excessive taxes that the beneficiaries and favorites of that party might be permitted to escape their just share of the public burdens; our public institutions have been wastefully and inefficiently managed and in them scandals and cruel wrongs have been practiced upon the defenseless wards of the state; the farmers and small shippers continue to suffer from unjust discrimination at the hands of unregulated monopoly; the fine system of municipal government has been wrecked and the credit of cities destroyed, thereby producing a spirit of insecurity and unrest in all public affairs. The people can no longer trust the administration of their affairs to a party thus recklessly devoted to interests adverse to the public welfare. As a more specific statement of our principles upon these and other public questions we declare:

TAXABLE PROPERTY.

1. That all taxable property should be appraised by assessing boards which should be in session for at least a part of each year and whose proceedings and deliberations should be open to the public; that power be given to employ a representative to present the interests of the public in making assessments all property should be appraised at not less than its saleable value.

2. That the present laws for assessing the property of steam railroads and other public service corporations should be so changed as to compel the assessment of those properties at not less than their saleable value as going concerns but to prevent their evasion of just taxation.

CLASSIFICATION.

3. That to prevent evasion of state taxes by discriminating valuations, separation of the sources of state and local revenues should be made. And to that end, we heartily endorse the constitutional amendment now pending before the people and to be voted on next year, which will permit classification of taxable property.

4. That all public service corporations should be required by law to make a return of public reports and that the power of visitation and examination over such corporations should be given to the proper auditing officers to the end that the true value of the privileges had by such corporation may be made plain to the people.

FREE PASSES.

5. That the acceptance of free passes or other favors from railroad by public officers or employees should be a good ground for their removal from office.

6. That the denial of the right of free speech and peaceable persuasion in times of labor disturbances is a denial of the right of free speech, and that government by injunction if persisted in, will wreck the liberties of the people.

MUNICIPAL CODE.

7. That we demand the enactment of a code which provides absolute home rule for municipalities which shall include the right to establish the merit system with civil service under which that system, as now in use in fire and police departments may be strengthened and perfected and be extended to other municipal departments particularly to water and lighting plants now operated by municipalities and to street car and all public service plants that may hereafter be established under municipal ownership and operation.

HANNA, COX AND FORAKER.

8. That we condemn the vicious and corrupt bargain between the boss of Cincinnati and Ohio's United States Senators to force through the legislature a code that will foist upon the municipalities of Ohio Cincinnati's form of government in order that the power of its boss may be preserved on one hand and on the other hand will perpetuate existing street railway franchises which Ohio's United States Senators represent.

9. That the municipal code should protect the public against all classes which may be clandestinely placed therein in the special interest of public service monopolies by requiring that all ordinances granting, renewing, extending or modifying franchises shall be inoperative until confirmed by a majority vote of the people of the municipality, and we are unalterably opposed to the granting of any perpetual franchises.

SENATORIAL NOMINATIONS.

10. That until United States senators are required by amendment to the federal constitution to be elected by popular vote nominations of candidates for United States senator should be made by state conventions. And we hereby direct that in the official call for the next Democratic state convention of Ohio there be embodied a clause providing for the nomination at that convention of Democratic candidate for United States senator and a clause providing for action by said convention, upon all amendments to the state constitution then pending before the people.

Upon these principles of home rule, and just taxation, and to the accomplishment of these purposes in municipal and state affairs, we invite the co-operation of all citizens of Ohio, regardless of their party affiliations, on national questions, hereby solemnly pledging our candidates to the faithful observance of this declaration both in letter and spirit.

PEARY'S PAY OF SERVANT.

Given $100 Check For "Rounding Most Northern Land."

At the Chase National bank Matthew Henson, for eleven years the negro body servant of Lieutenant Peary, cashed a check for $100, which he had in his possession two years, says the New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Press. Peary gave it to him for rounding the most northern point of known land on the face of the globe in April 1900. The check bore on its face in Peary's handwriting the words: "For gallant and efficient services in rounding the most northern land on the globe."

Henson has borne the cold of the far north abundantly well for an African and seems to adapt himself to the arctic climate as naturally as an Eskimo.

"I just want more."
—Oliver Twist.

Sweet as the breath of the oat-field when summer is young is the delicate fragrance of H-O.

H-O pancakes are just as easily made as ordinary griddle cakes, but they taste better. That good taste is put into them by adding H-O. Porridge left over from breakfast can be used for next day's pancakes.

H-O

HIS REASON WHY

[Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Company.]

"I am sorry we came," said Mrs. Travers to her companion as they emerged into the rain from the little railway station in one of the small towns in Holland. "I wish we had remained with the others at Middleburg instead of coming on this goose chase."

"A most fitting place for such a diversion," replied Meredith, who saw her eyes belie her words. "Don't you recollect the conductor calling the town 'Goose'?"

"Then the feet of the natives must be webbed," decided Mrs. Travers, smiling at the thought.

"Don't be flippant, my dear. The goose is a historical bird. As children our curls straightened and our eyes protruded as we learned how they saved Rome."

"Yes, but in after years, when shorn of our ringlets, how many of our swans have been geese?" she said, with a sigh.

"If I would be preferable to be a gander than not to have been at all." The artist was very happy that the others in their party had refused to visit the little town of Gees. It meant a long day with Mrs. Travers.

While trudging in the heavy mist through the quiet, quaint old streets, Meredith felt the small hand on his arm tremble, and drops not all rain fell upon the wet pink cheek. A peculiar, tender smile played about the firm mouth of the young man as he learned, in spite of all contradictions, that Gertrude Travers had a heart.

All the long summer he had hopelessly striven to find it, but was obliged to be content with friendship.

Mrs. Travers glanced doubtfully at her companion, but he appeared unconscious of her emotion. Even then she would not acknowledge to herself how dear to her heart, in spite of the depressing weather, was the walk alone with him. Their disappointment over the ruins of the castle of the Countess Jacqueline, which Meredith had come to sketch, did not still the pleasure of being together.

"As the old chateau has deteriorated into a hostelry, the question is whether to invade or evade," said the artist.

"Well," said Mrs. Travers impatiently, "a few moments later as she held the umbrella in a partly sheltered spot, 'why don't you sketch?'"

"Because," answered Meredith, looking quizzically into the dark eyes, "I've dreamed a dream, and—"

"Why spoil today for an unknown tomorrow?" interrupted Mrs. Travers. "No longer can I trace a line," continued the artist, taking no notice of the interruption, "without seeing a small bright face and hearing a voice whisper—"

"That marriage is a failure," broke in the lady who would forfeit $50,000, according to her late husband's will, the day she married.

"I cannot keep my thoughts where she is not, waking or sleeping."

"Don't think it was a pernicious habit. But, tell me, who was Jacqueline?"

"The Countess of Bavaria. And may you, unkind fairy, be imbued with her spirit!" said Meredith curtly, opening his sketchbook.

"A spirit for what?" she inquired, her curiosity aroused.

"Marrying," he replied solemnly, sharpening his pencil on a piece of sandpaper.

"How many times did her ladyship wear the marriage yoke?"

"Three times for state reasons and once for love, but—"

"Which caused her the greatest trouble?" interposed Mrs. Travers ironically.

"It was Francis Van Borselen's untiring devotion and deep affection for the beautiful princess that won her love and esteem," said Meredith, apparently unaware of the last remark and sketching with a vengeance.

"Was there no monetary consideration?" asked the worldly widow, with a suspicion of a twinkle in her eye.

pealed the hour. Meredith did not deign to answer; but, gathering up his paraphernalia, he said in a burly voice: "We have ten minutes to catch the train."

A short silence followed; then Mrs. Travers said softly, looking the artist over critically, "I believe there are still some foolish women who would do that for the men they love."

"Would you?" Meredith's breath came quick and fast. His lips touched her hair as he bent to hear her reply.

"Well, yes," coyly answered the lady who had fought bravely for many months to keep her legacy, "but only for a man like you."

The next instant one little hand was held fast in his, and under the umbrella he kissed the lips so near his own.

As they hurried through the deserted streets Meredith looked into the now thoughtful face and said tenderly, "You are not sorry that you came to the little 'Goose City'?"

"No; but, considering my dear experience, I think it appropriately named," replied Mrs. Travers mischievously.

That evening Meredith's sister said in tones of disgust while looking over his sketchbook:

"Robert, will you tell me why you brought back a sketch of the chateau of Jacqueline?"

"The reason why," replied her brother, smiling and looking at Mrs. Travers, "was a desire to have a facsimile of the spot where I brought $50,000."

THE COST OF RACING.

Thirty Million Dollars Spent Annually at the Tracks.

It costs the votaries of the turf $30,000,000 to witness horse racing in America each year, more than half as much as was voted by congress for the prosecution of the war with Spain.

This vast amount comes out of pockets of the public that it may witness a lot of thoroughbreds chase one another around the various tracks of the country in tests of speed, says the New York correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In this state alone nearly $3,500,000 is spent during the racing season, from April 15 to Nov. 15, to maintain the six racing associations that deal in the "sport of kings."

To own a race track at the present time is better and more profitable than to have a diamond mine.

The "thirty days" grace to meet bills is unknown. Everything is spot cash, and the money rolls into the treasury in a continuous stream from the opening day to the close of each meeting.

In order to secure this golden flow all that is required are a few acres of land, a grand stand, a betting ring and a fence. The public furnish the rest.

The different racing associations in this state are becoming enormously wealthy. They are required to pay into the state treasury a tax of 5 per cent on the gross receipts. The revenue is so great, however, they hardly notice this.

Each association pays its stockholders 10 per cent on their holdings. Twenty and 25 per cent could easily be paid from the amount cleared at each meeting, but the directors of each club think it advisable not to declare too big a dividend, and the surplus is invested in gilt edge securities.

THE FOOT BALL SEASON OPENS

Denison Made a Splendid Showing Against O. M. U. at Columbus Saturday Afternoon and Otterbein is Jubilant Over Game With O. S. U.

The football season in Columbus opened auspiciously in Columbus Saturday afternoon, and incidentally the career of Denison's 1902 gridiron representatives was also launched, to the great satisfaction of Coach Stanton and the adherents of the Red, of the well known Granville institution.

In spite of the published statements of satisfaction of coaches in the Columbus Sunday papers, there can be no doubt but that there was great disappointment over the results of the games played by the Columbus representatives in the two games played by O. S. U. and Ohio Medical University.

It is true that both these teams won, but by such a narrow margin, and the play of both teams developed such startling and vital weakness, that the feeling of jubilation is in each case with the vanquished team, and the corresponding sting is felt by the nominal victors.

There is joy today in the camp of Otterbein of Westerville, there is a feeling of pride and encouragement in the hearts of Denison enthusiasts at Granville.

The United Brethren with a lightweight team, and only a week's preliminary practice went to Columbus and stacked up against the Ohio State University eleven, which had several weeks preparation, including a trip to Ruggles Beach, under the tutelage of Perry Hale, one of the greatest players ever turned out at Yale University.

Of course no one expected Otterbein to score, and they didn't, but on the other hand Hale's players succeeded in scoring only one touchdown and Elder missed goal making the score 5 to 0. This was the final score.

The defense put up by Otterbein, was little short of marvelous and gained for them the plaudits of even the partisan crowd that saw the game.

The backs of the O. S. U. backs who hit the line high, according to Hale's instructions, gained little, and the team showed absolutely no ability, in fact seldom making the attempt, to run back kicks, contenting themselves with falling on the ball.

In punting, Elder's exhibition was something awful, and Malone did no better. Marquardt who played the second half did much better in this line. Wiles at quarter did some bad punting, and in his general playing failed to distinguish himself.

Taken as a whole the position seems to resolve itself into this: Hale has a good line, but a miserable back field with the exception of Swan and Brown, two half-backs, who will probably get the positions. These two men will do fairly well but there is no one to take their places in case of injury.

The team will have to get over their inability to catch and run back kicks, and a full-back who can punt over 20 yards will have to be developed. There were many substitutions in the O. S. U. line-up, while only one was made in Otterbein's. About 1,000 people saw the game, which was free from unnecessary roughness.

In the O. M. U.—Denison game played at Neil park the Granville boys did more than was hoped for, and showed that Coach Stanton has done well with the light material given him.

In playing O. M. U. the Denison team was up against eleven giants who outweighed them man for man, and in the general weight average it was not expected that they would score, but on the other hand it was hoped they would hold their opponents down and this they did to one touch-down and goal, making the final score 6 to 0.

Their plucky defense was most commendable and that they were in the best condition is shown that the same eleven who started the game, finished it.

O. M. U.'s weakness was fumbling, and to this may be attributed the fact that they did not score more points. The doctors battered the Denison line to pieces, and the Granville lads were unable to do anything with the ball when they did get it, the biggest gain being made by Jones, 15 yards through right end. They could do nothing with the Medics heavy line.

In the Columbus papers Flanagan and Patterson are said to have been guilty of offside play at critical times which the officials did not properly penalize, but the game was remarkably free from slugging or undue roughness.

It can be truthfully said that Denison's showing was more than satisfactory, and the team is to be congratulated.

About 1,500 people saw the game. The teams lined up as follows:

FOOTBALL IN EAST NEWARK.

The East Newark Athletic Club's team, and Manager Homer Allen's team played the first game of the season, which was in the nature of a practice game, at the East Newark ball park, Saturday afternoon.

The Newark boys succeeded in making one touchdown in the first half by outplaying the East Newark team, and another in the second half on account of the latter's lack of knowledge of the rules.

Jones for Newark kicked off from the middle of the field, the ball rolling across East Newark's goal line. No one would touch the ball, and Jones ran forward put his team on side, and fell on the ball, scoring a touch-down. Final score—East Newark 0, Newark 10. No goals were attempted.

Castillon's Retirement.

Empire Joe Castillon has again retired from the National league, partly on account of his mother's illness and partly to give his spare time to arranging for that California winter tour. His latest engagements are Pitchers Tannehill and Chesbro. The veteran Annie Latham has been appointed in Castillon's place and has been paired with Arthur Irwin.

Few Balles This Year.

Balles have been few and far between this season. Just seven players have been guilty of the misplay—Murphy and Dunham of St. Louis, Philippe of Pittsburgh, Breckley and Voorhes of Philadelphia, Mathewson and McGinnity of New York.

R. F. Doherty on American Tennis.

To the credit of the Doherty brothers, the English tennis champions, who, with Dr. Joshua Pim, recently invaded the United States in an endeavor to carry away the national championship, it must be said that they are sportsmen enough to admit that they have learned much on the American courts that will be valuable to them. In talking of the matter at Newport the taller of the pair, R. F. Doherty, said:

"The game has been developed to a surprising degree by you Yankees and

I was spending some time at an Atlantic seacoast resort—I would rather not name it—and was one day standing on the beach looking at the bathers when I saw a bathing master run for the water, jump in and swim from the shore. A woman had swum out far beyond her depth and was seen to go down. She was brought ashore in an unconscious condition, having sunk twice before the man reached her. I assisted in her restoration, persisting after others had given her up, and brought her back to consciousness. While working over her I noticed around her neck a gold chain to which was attached a singular looking key. Her first act after opening her eyes was to grasp the key.

Later I sent to her rooms at her hotel to learn of her condition and was invited up to her parlor. She was lying on a lounge, dressed in a becoming morning gown. She had not yet passed into middle age, though she was near it. Her face was rather interesting than beautiful.

"I suppose I must thank you for bringing me back to life," she said, "though I would be more grateful had you let me die."

"You have experienced a great trouble," I said. "When we suffer, we think there is no more happiness in store for us. When we cease to suffer, we forget that we have been miserable."

She put her hand to her bosom as if to assure herself that something she carried there had not been lost.

"Your key is safe," I said. "I kept an eye on it while we were working with you and saw you grasp it the moment you revived."

It occurred to me to make an attempt to thaw this woman out of her melancholy. I spent two months at the resort, meeting her constantly on the beach and being with her in sailing parties and other amusements. I succeeded in restoring her to a normal condition, but in doing so I lost my heart.

I well remember the evening I asked her to be my wife. We were sitting on a veranda overlooking the beach and the water. The wind had been offshore all day and had now died down. The swells were coming in sluggishly. I always liken the ocean in this condition to a lion beating the sands with his tail.

"Through sheer kindness," I said, "I have tried to bring you to a more cheerful frame of mind. Now I wish to see you happy that you may make me happy."

Her reply was a sudden clutching for the key.

"Tell me," I said—"I have earned your confidence—what is the mystery of this key?"

"Listen," she replied, "and you shall know."

"I am a married woman. Words can never express all I have endured from my husband. After a long course of brutality he left me. Before doing so he hung this key about my neck, with the words: 'I am going to be a wanderer and may never return. I give you one chance for happiness. If you can find the lock that the key fits, you will learn something that may prove of great importance to you.' He believed that I could never find it and wished only to tantalize me, though I could never understand why. Now I have a fancy that in that box there may be something that would release me from my legal connection with him."

"Why do you think that?"

"From hints he dropped from time to time."

"Show me the key."

She did so, and I examined it closely. It was neither a door key nor a trunk key. It looked rather as if it fitted the wards of a lock intended to keep valuables. I studied the matter for some time, then said:

"I can understand how a woman would consider the problem impossible of solution. To a man it looks comparatively easy. Confide the matter to me, and I will see what I can do."

She took the chain and key from her neck and handed them to me. Then, without looking further into the future, hoping for something—I did not know what—I left her and the next day returned to the city.

We met again in six weeks.

"I have solved the problem of the key," I said.

She was too excited to speak, and I continued:

"I had a hundred duplicates of the key made, then sent one to every safety deposit company in each of the larger cities of the United States, asking the manager if it would fit any of his compartments used for storing valuables. Last night I received a letter from the president of a St. Louis company stating that the key would open a compartment in their vaults standing in your name."

"Well?" she asked breathlessly.

"That is all I know. Will you go there to learn the rest?"

"I will start tonight."

"Within a week she returned and, flushed with excitement, told me that she had found valuable securities that she supposed her husband had squandered; also a confession that he had served a term in the penitentiary for defalcation.

"Before he married you?" I asked.

"Yes."

"You knew nothing of this?"

"No."

"There will be little trouble in securing an annulment of such a marriage. It was no marriage."

The result proved that I was right. In time the courts annulled the marriage, and soon after a real marriage letter came to my wife from the wanderer, written on his deathbed, giving the information I had elicited by my investigation.

The Mysterious Key

[Original.]

I was spending some time at an Atlantic seacoast resort—I would rather not name it—and was one day standing on the beach looking at the bathers when I saw a bathing master run for the water, jump in and swim from the shore. A woman had swum out far beyond her depth and was seen to go down. She was brought ashore in an unconscious condition, having sunk twice before the man reached her. THE MAN WITH A LISP.

He Tried to Slay a Bear and Tired Himself Out.

The station agent at Canon City had a half grown chimpanzee chained up to a post as a pet and a curiosity, and while the train waited there for the eastbound to come along many of the passengers crossed the tracks to gaze at the living wonder. Among them was a girl faced man with a lisp, who viewed the bear for awhile and then went back to the agent and asked:

"Thir, I thee you have a bear over there."

"Yes, sir."

"Is it a real bear?"

"Of course."

"If I should kill him, could I telegraph to my ma in New York that I had thlain a savage monster of the west?"

"You could."

"How much to let me shoot at him this times?" continued the young man as he fished up a small revolver.

"Twenty dollars for six shots," replied the agent.

"I will accept, and here is your money. Now then, every body stand back while I thlay the monster in U's tracks."

We moved back, and he advanced to within ten feet of the bear and opened fire. The beast stood broadside on, eating some nuts thrown to him, and while the six shots were being fired he did not even raise his head. One bullet carried away a bit of his fur, but every one of the others went over him.

"Have I thlain him?" asked the young man as he stood with empty weapon in hand.

"He doesn't appear to be slain," replied the agent. "Want to try six more at the same price?"

"No, thir, I guess not. I will go in and telegraph to ma thath I started out to thlay a monster of the west, but he refused to be thlain and tired me out."

BURNED AT STAKE

Confessed Negro Murderer Pays Penalty for Crimes.

Admitted That His Fate Was Well Deserved--Husband and Brother of Victim Applied the Torch at Corinth, Miss.

Corinth, Miss., Sept. 29.—Writhing in the flames of burning fagots, piled high by hundreds of citizens, Tom Clark, alias Gibson a young negro, was burned at the stake here Sunday, after having confessed to one of the most atrocious crimes in the history of north Mississippi, the assault and murder of Mrs. Carey Whitfield on August 19. Before the torch was applied Clark stated that he reserved his fearful fate.

Last August Mrs. Whitfield, the wife of a well known citizen, was found dead in her home. Investigation showed that the woman had been assaulted and her head was practically severed from her body, a razor having been used in the bloody work. Several suspects were arrested, but in each case an alibi was proven.

It became known last Monday that Tom Clark, had had trouble with his wife, and the latter threatened to disclose the secret of his crime. Officers apprehended the woman and she told enough to warrant the belief that Clark had killed Mrs. Whitfield.

The negro finally confessed and told of other crimes he had committed. He said that several years ago he killed two men on an excursion train in Mississippi. He told of an outrage perpetrated by himself upon a negro woman, and also of the theft of $1,500 from a physician at French Camp, Miss. After hearing the confession, the committee decided that the negro should be hanged. Clark said he deserved death, but asked that the execution be delayed until Sunday, so that he could have a farewell interview with his mother and brother, who live in Memphis. The request was granted, and the two relatives were telegraphed for, but it was learned that they were in Mississippi.

Meanwhile the news of the negro's arrest and confession spread rapidly and incoming trains brought hundreds of people into the city to witness the execution.

The crowds became so great that at midday the main street of the town was ordered cleared and the announcement was made that it had been decided to burn Clark at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. This statement caused much excitement. At 2 o'clock pine fagots and large pieces of wood were carefully laid about an iron rod. At 3 o'clock the prisoner was taken from the jail by a posse of armed men and followed by a large and excited crowd of men and boys, was led to the east gate of the city. Fagots and wood had been piled high around the stake and the negro was securely fastened to the iron rod.

Clark was asked if he cared to make a statement. He again said that he deserved the fate prepared for him and asked that a letter be delivered to his mother and brother. He appealed to his brother to raise his children properly, admonishing them to beware of evil company. Finally, all was in readiness and the word was given to fire the funeral pyre.

The husband and brother of Clark's victim stepped forward and applied torches, and in a moment the flames leaped upward, enveloping the trembling negro in smoke and fire. The clothing of the doomed man was soon ignited and as the flames grew hotter the skin began to parch.

The negro moaned pitifully at this juncture and the agonizing look upon his face told of the awful torture he was undergoing. Finally his head fell forward upon his breast and in a few minutes all was over. The flames were fed by the crowd until the body was burned to a crisp. Then the gathering, in an orderly manner, dispersed and the town soon assumed its normal condition.

CORNER STONE

Of Second Methodist Church Laid With Imposing Ceremony on Sunday—Over $10,000 Has Been Pledged For New Structure.

The most important event in the history of the Second Methodist church of East Newark, occurred Sunday, September 28, the occasion marking the culmination of conscientious effort, intelligent management, and excellent business sagacity and foresight. The corner-stone of the new church was laid with appropriate and done to and had a general bearing upon the principal event of the day.

The following program was carried out:

MORNING SERVICE—10 O'CLOCK.

1. Organ Voluntary.

2. Hymn—Apostles' Creed, Choir.

3. Invocation—Rev. T. F. Garrett of Amesville.

impressive ceremonies, which were witnessed by a large crowd of interested spectators, the threatening and disagreeable weather tending to keep many more away.

The immediate ceremonies connected with the corner-stone laying began at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, but the morning services were in-

AFTERNOON SERVICE—2:30.

1. Organ Voluntary.

2. Hymn—Apostles' Creed, Choir.

3. Invocation—Rev. N. W. Good.

4. Anthem—Choir.

5. Names of members of "Builders' Union" collected and placed in Corner-stone box.

6. Solo—Prof. N. B. Yearley.

7. Corner-Stone Address—Hon. Morris Sharp, Washington, O.

8. Ritual service in connection with the laying of the Corner-stone.

9. Hymn, Closing with Doxology—Choir.

10. Benediction—Rev. N. W. Good.

The corner-stone was laid containing the following article: Copy of church laws and discipline, a copy of Western Christian Advocate, the official church organ, names of official board of the church, names of the building committee, list of officers of the Masonic organizations, Odd Fellows, Modern Woodmen, Knights of Pythias and other secret societies, names of those who contributed $1 cash to building fund, copy of the Newark Daily American-Tribune of September 27, copy of the Newark Daily Advocate of September 27.

The stone is temporarily covered and the zinc box containing the above list of articles is in the custody of Undertaker Hugh Fleming to be kept until the permanent covering arrives in about a week. In the meantime anyone who contributes $1 cash, may have his name put in the box, which will then be cemented into the stone.

Mr. S. S. Brown, secretary of the Building committee, said this morning that the corner-stone exercises netted about $600, for which the thanks of the committee is extended to all contributors.

The new church will be enclosed this fall and Contractor P. S. Phillips says the opening services may be held in the new auditorium about next May.

The plans for its building were begun about four years ago, soon after the beginning of the pastorate of Rev. M. W. Acton, the present minister. Last December the old church was visited by a disastrous fire, and the plans were hastened, ground being broken for the new building about August 1st last.

The new church is to cost about $18,000, and over $10,000 of this amount is pledged. This does not include the value of the old church building. This old church will be moved about 15 feet north and east, and a double dwelling house of about 12 rooms will be constructed. These dwellings will be rented, and should bring in a good income.

POST FELL

And the Frightened Horse Ran Dragging It Along—The Animal Was Badly Hurt.

The fine horse owned by Dr. W. H. Knauss was the victim of a strange and very serious accident on Sunday evening.

The Doctor had returned home early in the evening from calling on some patients and had hitched the horse to a limestone post in front of his house on Hudson avenue without noticing that the post had been broken off near the ground and was ready to fall.

During the Doctor's absence the horse became restive and pulled the post over. This frightened the animal and he started to run, dragging the piece of post after him. The post flew against his front legs cutting the tendons of the right front leg very badly. The horse continued down Hudson avenue and turned on the north side of the square, where he fell near the Auditorium, and was caught by Mr. A. Rader and a soldier from the Third regiment, U. S. I., encamped at the State Grounds. The horse was quieted down and taken to Dr. Priest the well known veterinary surgeon for treatment, which it is hoped will prove successful, as the animal is a very valuable one.

AN OLD FAVORITE

OLD GRIMES

By Albert Gorton Greene

ALBERT GORTON GREENE, author and jurist, was born in Providence, R. I., Feb. 10, 1852, and died in Cleveland, O., Jan. 2, 1932. He was a lawyer by profession, but a scholar by natural choice, and took a deep interest in the intellectual development of his native state. The private library of Judge Greene, now in Brown university, contained 20,000 volumes. "Old Grimes" is the best known of his poems.

OLD Grimes is dead, that good old man—
We ne'er shall see him more;
He used to wear a long black coat,
All buttoned down before.
His heart was open as the day,
His feelings all were true;
His hair was some inclined to gray—
He wore it in a queue.
When'er he heard the voice of pain,
His breast with pity burned;
The large round hand upon his cane
From ivory was turned.
Kind words he ever had for all;
He knew no base design;
His eyes were dark and rather small,
His nose was aquiline.
He lived at peace with all mankind,
In friendship he was true;
His coat had pocket-holes behind,
His pantaloons were blue.
Unharm'd, the sin which earth pollutes
He passed securely o'er—
And never were a pair of boots
For thirty years or more.
But good Old Grimes is now at rest,
Nor fears misfortune's frown;
He wore a double-breasted vest—
The stripes ran up and down.
He modest merit sought to find,
And pay it its desert;
He had no malice in his mind,
No ruffles on his shirt.
His neighbors he did not abuse—
Was sociable and gay;
He wore large buckles on his shoes,
And changed them every day.
His knowledge, hid from public gaze,
He did not bring to view;
Nor make a noise, town-meeting days,
As many people do.
His worldly goods he never threw
In trust for fortune's chances,
But lived (as all his brothers do)
In easy circumstances.
Thus undisturbed by anxious cares
His peaceful moments ran,
And everybody said he was
A fine old gentleman.

RED AND BROWN POPULAR.

Not Every Woman, However, Can Wear the Latter Shade.

Reds and browns are very fashionable just now. Brown is a suitable autumn tint, but one which requires to be chosen with care. No woman should attempt to wear it unless she belongs to the chestnut type. She who possesses russet brown or chestnut locks or, better still, Titian hair looks charming when dressed in this tint. The dark brunette, too, with the brilliant coloring may wear brown, but blonds should beware of it, as it ruins the coloring of their hair and eyes.

Brown cloth with soft colored strappings makes a charming coat and skirt suit for general utility and can be combined with a brown silk waist trimmed with touches of brownish Persian pattern.

Red of all shades is being much used in millinery. The red hats are worn with black and dark blue suits and are especially stunning in rough felt trimmed with bunches of red velvet flowers and black velvet ribbon.

Rough white felt hats are all the rage. They are trimmed with bright colors.

The smart little hat shown is of rough white felt trimmed with a bright green parrot and a band of deep green velvet.

FALL FASHION NOTES.

Box Plaited Skirts—Capes on Coats and Gowns.

A great many skirts are now on trial, but only one or two will attain any popularity. The box plaited skirt can only be worn by the very few. It is quite unsuitable for heavy goods, and it is only effective as a short skirt. The prettiest form of the box plaited skirt is that set into a yoke fitting the hips, and this is made in two fashions—the one having a perfectly plain gored front, with the yoke and box plaits running around the sides, and the other with a round yoke and plaits running into it, leaving just a plain narrow strip in front.

The cape ruffle has brought into favor capes and mantles and gowns. These cape collars are cut in godet fashion and are quite plain at the top, but frill a little at the edge. The spreading highwayman collar is less compact and is cut in semigodet style. It goes well with the sack coat which has no neckband.

The shooting miter illustrated is of checked Scotch goods in red and deep blue. The high collar is of velvet. The triple capes and triple cuffs are smartly stitched. The buttons are of simple bone. The hat which goes with this is of white felt trimmed with blue ribbon and red and blue veils.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Plausible.

"Are you blind, prisoner?" inquired the magistrate.

"Yes, your worship."

"You are charged with vagrancy. How did you lose your sight?"

"By a fit of applepox, sir."

"But there is a picture on your breast representing an explosion in a mine, through which, it is stated, you became blind. How is this?"

"Fleece, your worship, I couldn't afford to pay an artist as could paint applepox."

GRANVILLE

Surprise Party in Honor of Mrs. Emma Little Saturday Night—Literary Society.

Granville, O., Sept. 29—One of the most enjoyable social events that has taken place in Granville in a long time was the surprise party at the home of Mrs. Lydia Green on Saturday evening in honor of the seventy-second anniversary of Mrs. Emma Little, who is a daughter of the late Mrs. Loebe, a former resident of Granville, who lived to the advanced age of 100 years. On Saturday afternoon several of the lady friends of Mrs. Little called on her at her home and on taking their departure said that they were going to call on Mrs. Green, a neighbor, and invited Mrs. Little to accompany them. She finally consented and upon entering the home of Mrs. Green was very much surprised to find a large number of her friends assembled there, and was still more surprised to learn that they had come together for the purpose of celebrating the anniversary of her birth. She gracefully yielded to the situation however, and joined with her friends, the majority of whom she had known nearly all her life, and with whom she had attended school at the old Granville Female College in her girlhood days, in having a good social time. One of the features of the occasion was the sumptuous supper that was provided from the well filled baskets of the self invited guests. It was an occasion that will long be remembered with pleasure by the following named persons, who participated in the affair: Mrs. Lydia Green, Mrs. Sinnett, Mrs. Helen Rose, Mrs. Raymond and daughter of Milwaukee, Miss Hannah Jones, Miss Mary Farmer, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Devanney, Dr. and Mrs. Werk, Miss Amelia Bancroft, and Mrs. George T. Jones.

Miss Alice Hennessy of Columbus, who has been visiting friends here for some days returning home on Friday. F. F. Robinson of Frazesburg, is moving into the property on Granger street, which he recently purchased from J. L. Lewis.

John Smith is building a new iron fence around his property, corner of Broadway and Prospect streets, which adds considerably to the attractiveness of the place.

The Franklin Literary Society held its regular meeting on Friday evening, when the following program was carried out: Declaration, "Tam O'Shanter," F. S. LaRue; Essay, "Summer Experiences," I. A. Field; Extempore, "Earnestness in the Ideal Student," Ralph B. Miller; Reading, selection from Billy Baxter's Letters, W. R. Zimmerman; Extempore, "The O. M. Game," W. L. Flory. Programs were also rendered by the Cicero, Calliope and Irving Societies on the same evening.

Prof. Fred Hulton, who is taking a course of instruction in the Chicago university, visited here for several days during the past week.

Fred Rummel went to Granville on Friday morning, where he will enter upon his studies in Doane Academy. Mansfield Shield.

Mrs. Thomas Davis, who resides a short distance east of the village, while walking around the house, stepped on a slippery board, and was thrown to the ground, spraining her hip.

SORGHUM MOLASSES.

Mr. Jacob Weiss, one of the prominent farmers residing about one mile north of Vanatta has the thanks of the editor of the Advocate for a sample of fine sorghum molasses, of Mr. Weiss' own making. Mr. Weiss, who was assisted by Mr. Baker, made about 200 gallons of the molasses this season for out-of-door parties, and has about 150 gallons of his own. The molasses is of a very superior quality, having been made in a modern evaporator.

UTICA NEWS

Mrs. Ernest Sellers' Death—R. B. Truman and Wife are Buried at Utica—A Wedding.

Utica, Ohio, Sept. 29—Saturday's Advocate contained a letter from Attorney J. H. Chitwood of Fredericktown, Mo., making inquiry about Robert B. Truman or his heirs. Both Mr. Truman and his wife are buried in the Utica cemetery. Frank Laird of Newark, is a grandson of Mr. Truman.

Mrs. Ernest Sellers, aged 35 years, died at 9 o'clock Sunday night leaving her husband and one son aged eleven years. Mrs. Sellers was formerly Miss Higgins of Hunt. The funeral has not yet been arranged.

On Saturday morning of this week Dr. G. E. Eoy was having been practicing medicine here for the past six years, and Miss Maureen Lott of this place will be married, leaving immediately afterwards for a trip to Pennsylvania.

The Logan Gas Company expects to strike gas before the day ends at the well now being drilled near Utica. This will make the fifth gas well within a half mile of town. The home company has at least 100 fires burning in town and new connections are being made every day.

REV. MR. JOHNSON

Newark Pastor Slated for Presiding Elder—Fellows Case at Zanesville Conference.

Zanesville, Sept. 29—Interest in the proceedings of the Ohio Methodist conference Sunday centered in Bishop Fitzgerald's sermon on "The crucifixion of Christ."

In the afternoon the ordination of elders and the annual memorial service took place, and last evening President Bashford of Ohio Wesleyan university made an address in which he urged the state universities to confine themselves just to post graduate work and industrial and commercial education.

Next to the conjecture over the possible pastoral changes the topic uppermost in the conversation of the delegates is the probable action to be taken by Rev. C. A. Fellows against those who were instrumental in bringing charges against him. Mr. Fellows is being urged to begin proceedings against those who were at the bottom of his recent trouble. Mr. Fellows refused to make any statement further than that he has been urged to take punitive action.

Bishop Fitzgerald was today presented with a petition containing the names of nearly the entire membership of Manly church at Portsmouth asking that Mr. Fellows be returned as their pastor.

The deputy bishops who made the lobby appointments have picked the following presiding elders: Columbus district, Isaac Crook of Ironton; Chillicothe Arthur E. Johnson of Newark; Gallipolis, B. F. Jackson of West Jefferson; Zanesville, J. C. Sparks of Wellston. J. C. Leucke of Columbus is slated for either London or Washington C. H.

FRIENDS

MARCHED IN ON SENATOR WM. E. MILLER

And Presented Him With Fine Chair—Scheidler Shop Employees Remember Former Manager.

Hon. William E. Miller, who recently resigned the position of Manager of the Scheidler machine works of this city, with which industry he had been connected for the past twenty years, to accept the position of general manager of the new People's Natural and Artificial Gas Light and Fuel company of this city, was the recipient of one of the greatest surprises of his life on Saturday evening. Ever since Mr. Miller left the Scheidler works the employees or that institution have been planning to show in some marked manner their appreciation of his worth both as a gentleman and a friend. To that end they appointed Mr. Charles Luther as a committee of one to secure the best secretary's chair in the city with a view to presenting it to him as a slight testimonial of their esteem.

Accordingly Mr. Luther succeeded in securing a handsome chair, and one that suited all concerned, and on last Saturday night, about 8 o'clock, 21 of the employees of the shop, headed by Mr. Scheidler, taking the chair with them, repaired to the office of Mr. Miller, at 27 South Park Place, over Little's grocery. Mr. Miller who had been detained at the office by several friends was greatly surprised when the crowd came in on him. He soon caught on to the situation, however, and after a hearty handshake all round, Mr. Brown, one of the popular pattern-makers at the shop, stepped forward, and in a few remarks on behalf of the employees with whom he had been associated for so long a time, presented Mr. Miller with the handsome chair. Mr. Miller, who was nearly overcome with emotion, managed to respond in a fitting manner, thanking all and assuring them that he would ever remember the occasion as one of the happiest of his life. Several hours were then passed in having a good social time, which was enlivened by numerous rhymes made by Mr. Scheidler. The occasion will long be remembered by all who took part in it.

NEWS IN BRIEF

TONIGHT—St. Francis Commandery, K. of St. J., will hold an important meeting tonight.

TONIGHT—The keystones open a week's engagement at the Auditorium tonight.

FALSE ALARM—An alarm of fire Saturday night from box 52 proved to be false.

NEW HOUSE—The handsome new residence of Mr. Frank Bader, corner of Granville and Eddy streets, is rapidly approaching completion.

FUNERAL—The funeral of Mrs. Addie Weaver will take place at 426 Eastern avenue at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Mrs. Weaver was formerly Miss Addie Bolin. She was a prominent member of the A. P. U. and Court of Honor.

FOR DAMAGES—Mrs. Geo. Moore this morning filed an affidavit in Squire Atherley's court against Joe Painter for $52 lost by her husband in gambling and $200 exemplary damages.

FOOT BALL—The Third Infantry football team now in camp at the State grounds would like to arrange a game with Newark's local team. Address or see Manager Eagan or Captain Cox at the State Camp Grounds.

CONCERT TUESDAY NIGHT—The Otterbein Quartet company of Westerville, O., will give a concert at Taylor Hall tomorrow evening, Sept. 30. The quartet's record of the past season shows over 125 engagements, filled. The young men have a reputation of which a much older organization might well be proud. The four voices possess great power and perfect blending. The quartet comes to Newark highly recommended.

HOMING BIRDS—Frank Fink, who is the owner of a number of fine homing pigeons on Sunday took two of the birds that were only six weeks old, out to the Zartman bridge, three miles southwest of the city, and turned them loose. From the time they left the basket until they arrived home, was eleven minutes. This is considered very good time for such young birds.

PALMA DISCUSSES CUBA

Satisfied With Progress the New Republic Has Made.

FIRST FOUR MONTHS' EXPERIENCE

Cuban President Would Like to See American Artillery Withdrawn From the Island—The Proposed Big Loan.

On the occasion of the ending of the first four months of "Cuba libre" President Palma gave the Havana correspondent of the New York Tribune an interview, in the course of which he said:

"Our first four months of self government has been as successful as any one could expect. We have paid all expenses of government and have a surplus. Everything is running smoothly and to my entire satisfaction."

A statement of President Palma in regard to the retention of United States artillerymen in Cuba will be of great interest in the United States and particularly to Washington officials. He said:

"It will be a source of gratitude and rejoicing for the Cuban people when the American troops are all withdrawn, and I hope it will be soon. They are not needed. Their presence has a bad moral effect. It looks to some as though the United States government has no confidence in the ability of the Cubans to maintain peace and govern themselves."

The old veteran spoke with considerable feeling as he said this.

"I don't want to be misunderstood," he added. "We are grateful to the Americans, but the people cannot feel free with American soldiers all around them. They are not needed to protect us from outsiders, and if they ever are they could be quickly dispatched here. Our artillery force, when increased to 5,000 men, will be sufficient for the country."

As to the question of reciprocity, President Palma said he hoped for favorable action by the United States senate at the coming session. The insertion of a Cuban plank in the Republican platform in several states he considers an augury for the success of reciprocal measures. "But," he said, "we want no reciprocity that will affect our commerce with other countries. Our ports must be open to the world, and we must foster commercial relations with every country. The reciprocity measure must be of equal benefit to both countries."

The chief executive is studying internal taxes in force in other republics. He intends recommending internal taxes on cigars, cigarettes, wines and other luxuries. The tax will be slight, but sufficient to raise large revenues.

In the matter of the loan of $35,000,000, in which congress gave the president a free hand to act, the latter said:

"The borrowing of so large a sum is a serious question for Cuba, and I must first carefully study it before deciding what to do. Of course, if we do decide to borrow, we will fulfill all requirements of the Platt amendment as to setting aside enough for a sinking fund and interest."

FARLEY'S PROMOTION.

Parishioner of New Archbishop Extended Congratulations.

Archbishop Elect John M. Farley enjoys a good story as well as the next, says the New York Times, and when passing a social hour sometimes recounts his experiences. At a dinner given to the Very Rev. Dean Liags in Yonkers several weeks ago the bishop related the following to the delectation of the assembled guests:

"It was shortly after I had been made vicar general, or monsignore—I do not remember which—when an aged Irishman encountered me on the street. She was a good old soul and had been a member of our parish church for years. Grasping me by the hand, she remarked:

"Oh, father, and sure the Lord bless you. I hear they gave you a rise."

"I replied that her information was correct."

"Well," she responded, 'an' I'm pleased for that. It's yourself that deserves the rise."

"I thanked the good woman sincerely and was about to leave her when, still holding my hand, she remarked: 'An' all I hope is that the next rise they give you will be to heaven.'"

BOY STOPS SCHOOL STRIKE

Insists That Pupils Take Advantage of Present Opportunities.

Condy McCole, nine years old, a breaker boy, stopped the strike of a couple of hundred pupils at the Hilliard Grove school, this city, says a Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) dispatch, by a whole lot of advice. The pupils were going to leave school because some of the children had relatives working at the mines. Condy was asked to make the speech to the principal, D. L. O'Neil, but instead he spoke to them. "When there ain't no strike," he said, "I've got to work in the breaker, and now, when I can go to school, I'm going to get all the schoolin' I can and not go on no strike and that's what all of you ought to do."

That ended the proposed strike.

Ohio Puts Bar on Pimping.

After a long and eloquent discussion the house committee of the Ohio legislature has decided that pimping should come under the ban of the law, along with pool and billiard tables, as well as roulette.

CHOICE DENVER BEVERAGES

They Include "Crescent Cocktail," "Onionade" and "Kerosene Fizz."

These are the days of glory for the "soda water jokers" in the downtown drugstores. An epidemic of advertising the artists has spread around all the establishments until nearly every one is calling attention both to the peculiar excellence of their concoctions and the star performers behind the marble slabs.

In the window of a Fifteenth street establishment, for example, appears this legend:

GET ARTHUR TO MAKE YOU A CRESOITE COCKTAIL. They're Good.

Over on Sixteenth street, near California, is this invitation:

COME IN AND GEORGE WILL MAKE YOU AN OIONADE. Sweetens the Breath.

A Lawrence street establishment presents the following:

BOB AND TOMMY BOTH KNOW HOW TO MAKE A KEROSENE FIZZ.

But a Broadway establishment has most thoroughly paved the way for an entente cordiale between the customer and the man at the fountain in these touching words:

JUST WINK AT BILLY. BILLY KNOWS.

MRS. MURPHY'S GRIEF.

Hippopotamus Grows Hysterical When Separated From Her Baby.

Mrs. Murphy of Central park is not a wash lady, but a hippopotamus, says the New York Times. She lives in a tub, therefore, or something like one, and she has a mate named Caliph and a baby hippo named Lotus. The removal of the family from summer to winter quarters made a scene in which pathos and comedy were oddly mingled.

By persuasive prods of pitchforks in the hands of the keepers Caliph, much against his will, was induced to take up his quarters in the lion house tank. Then more prods forced Mrs. Murphy to join her mate. The trouble came when Lotus, who is a very likely child and has never been parted from his mother, was put in a separate tank.

The bereaved Mrs. Murphy opened wide her cavernous jaws and complained bitterly. She thrashed about wildly and bellowed like a huge cow robbed of its calf and altogether behaved with such feminine tempestuousness that the very lions grew uneasy. The roaring of the lions only made the bereaved mother more frantic. She plunged more madly and bellowed more loudly, while Lotus added his baby voice to the pandemonium. It was the voice of one that refused to be comforted, and for a time the keepers had all that they could do, and the lion house sounded like an African jungle at midnight.

MAY HAVE BRIDAL CAR.

Scheme to Protect Passengers From Showers of Rice.

For the protection of its passengers the Chicago and Northwestern road may be forced to haul a bridal car on one of its eastbound trains, says a dispatch from Freeport, Ill. This train is numbered 136 and leaves this city every weekday evening at 6:15 and arrives in Chicago at 10:10. It has been estimated that this train carries more wedding parties and bridal pairs than any other short run train in the middle west.

There was strewn on the floor of the car the other day sufficient rice to fill a bushel measure, and the package racks were hung with old shoes of every size and kind. The seats and the windows were festooned with white ribbons, and at each station, there would come in through the open windows showers of rice and handfuls of small circulars setting forth the fact that a newly wedded pair were about to get on the train.

For this reason the company thinks it would be a good plan to load the blissful pairs in one car, which would be properly labeled and decorated and where ordinary passengers would not be unceremoniously disturbed.

HELEN GOULD AIDS FIREMEN

Gives Check to Company and Will Build Clubhouse.

The members of Jackson Engine company, a volunteer organization of Tarrytown, N. Y., the other night, says the New York Press, were entertained by Miss Helen M. Gould in Lyndhurst, her country seat. She gave a check for $100 to be added to the fund for the purchase of a new chemical engine. She spoke of building a clubhouse for the use of the firemen. When she asked if they would make use of such a building, there was a great chorus of "Yes."

Miss Gould said she might build the clubhouse near Woody Crest, the manual training home for boys which she maintains near Lyndhurst. Miss Gould has given uniforms to the employees on her place, and they have formed two baseball nines.

Demand For Naval Cookbook.

Since the publication several days ago of the fact that the navy department has issued a cookbook the department has been fairly flooded with requests for copies, says a Washington correspondent. Rear Admiral Kenney, the paymaster general of the navy, who prepared it, has had time for little else than answering these requests. The demand has been so great that the edition is almost entirely exhausted.

HEBREWS IN ROUMANIA

How They Are Treated by the Balkan Government.

WHY CONSIDERED UNDESIRABLE.

As Descendants of Romans the Roumanians Have Long Standing Prejudices Against the Jews—Would Keep Them Wandering.

Roumanian Jews, about whom Secretary Hay addressed a note to Europe, says the New York Evening Post, are among the most undesirable immigrants which come to these shores. In 1900 large numbers of them had to be denied admission to the country, and this summer Ellis Island authorities had to send back numbers of them because they were destitute or diseased. Roumanian persecutions of these people gave Mr. Hay a motive for asking that the powers which are responsible for the existence of Roumanian shall persuade that government to be more liberal and not force its Jews by hard customs to flee to this country.

Jews in America approve his note because it may ameliorate conditions in Roumanian. Social students approve because such immigrants are likely to become a charge upon American institutions. All the Jewries of Europe have the complaint that we have, and, excepting possibly Russia, whose tactics Roumanian is copying, all the powers are expected to support the communication.

Practically what the United States is interested in is that it shall not be burdened with Roumanian outcasts. "The purposes of our generous treatment of the alien immigrant is to benefit us and him alike, not to afford another state a field upon which to cast its own objectionable elements."

Roumanian helped the Russians in the Russo-Turkish war in 1877, saved Russia indeed at the siege of Plevna and when peace came proclaimed herself independent of the suzerainty of Turkey and asked that the congress at Berlin give her recognition. Beaconsfield was an influence in that congress, and before Roumanian's request was accepted to she was required to abrogate all her anti-Jewish enactments and agree that "in Roumanian the difference of religious creeds and confessions shall not be alleged against any person as a ground for exclusion or incapacity in matters relating to the enjoyment of civil and political rights, admission to public employments, functions and honors or the exercise of the various professions and industries, as well as guaranteeing that all foreigners shall be treated, without distinction of creed, on a footing of equality."

This was imposed upon Roumanian in the way that the Platt amendment was imposed upon Cuba. She accepted it and then disregarded it, until the list of her discriminations has reached large dimensions.

Jews are not admitted there to the practice of law. They are regarded, though centuries in the country, as "aliens not subject to foreign protection." To become naturalized (only 400 out of the 400,000 are citizens) each applicant has to be passed by parliament. One of the school grammars, illustrating a rule of syntax, says, "You must not believe the word of a Jew even when he is at the point of death," another says, "Ginsphors are kept by Jews, who, like leeches, suck the blood of peasants by enticing them to drunkenness."

Jewish schools were closed in 1899 because they were not kept open six days a week (that included Saturday, the Hebrew Sabbath). Jewish communities were deprived of control of the kosher meat tax on which their schools and churches largely depended. In 1887 it was decreed that Jews should be admitted to public schools only after the Roumanians had been accommodated. In 1893 they were excluded for being aliens, but could enter if there was room upon payment of a fee. The university, free to Roumanians, charged 300 francs a year to aliens. Though admitted to the army, the Jews, being aliens, did not, like others, earn pensions by two years' service, and they were not eligible to military academies.

APPEALED TO MRS. HANNA.

Senator's Wife Orders Union Men to Quit Work.

Mrs. Hanna, the wife of the senator, took a hand in a labor controversy and succeeded in winning the good will of every member of the Painters' union, says a Cleveland special. A house on Russell avenue which is owned by the senator was being repainted, and a force of sixteen men employed by a contractor was at work there. The men did not belong to the union, and their employer would not recognize the union.

Union officials discussed the matter Friday night and decided to do something. It was deemed advisable to send a committee to see Senator Hanna, but as he was out of town the committee called on Mrs. Hanna instead. When she had heard the complaint, she ordered her carriage, drove to the house and ordered the painters to cease work. They obeyed her, and later every one of them joined the union, their employer signing the union agreement.

Labor Leader Mayor of Dublin.

The office of lord mayor of Dublin is to be filled in 1903, for the first time, by a representative of labor. Alderman Dowd, a member of the trades council of Dublin, having been selected as the successor of Mr. Timothy Harrington, M. P., the present lord mayor. Dublin's lord mayor receives an allowance of £3,000 a year, with residence in the Mansion House.

LONG TROLLEY RIDE.

Extended With Few Breaks From Flint, Mich., to Boston.

One of the longest trolley trips ever recorded in this country has just been completed by Robert H. Darragh, the local street railway expert and publisher, says a Boston dispatch. He covered the distance between Flint, Mich., and Boston, with the exception of a few breaks in Ohio and New York state, entirely by trolley. He actually covered over 900 miles, although the air line distance via the steam roads between the points named is 833 miles.

Summarized, his trip showed exceptional street railway development in Michigan and Ohio, partial development in New York state and a break of only about fifty miles in Massachusetts.

Mr. Darragh began his trip by going from Detroit to Flint, Mich., over the Detroit, Rochester and Lake Orion Electric railway entirely by trolley. From Flint he returned over the same line and in reality began his trip eastward from there. From Detroit he went to Toledo. The direct line between Toledo and Cleveland is over the lines operated by the Northern Ohio Traction company. From Schenectady, N. Y., one of the best roads in the country runs through Troy to Albany. From Troy connection can be made with the Hoosac valley, which runs almost to the Massachusetts state line. A new company has been formed to build a line through to Pittsfield. At the present time the train must be taken a greater part of the way between Albany and Pittsfield.

From Pittsfield the lines of the Pittsfield Electric Steel railway company extend east only as far as Dalton, a distance of about six miles, but a new company has recently been formed to build a line from Pittsfield through to Springfield. From Springfield to Boston the route was a familiar one.

LOVE THAT ENDURED.

Mrs. Partridge's Death Closes Romance of Half a Century.

With the death of Miss Eliza Ann Partridge, says the New York Journal, there ended a romance which dates back half a century and has involved many prominent people in this city.

Miss Partridge was born in Pomfret, Conn., in 1814. Her father was a member of a family that traced itself back to Plymouth days. When about sixteen years old, Miss Partridge came to this city and soon after fell in love with Henry Hall Ward, who was her cousin. The attachment was mutual, and the couple became engaged. The family on both sides, however, objected to a marriage on account of the consanguinity, and they were never united. Both persisted in maintaining the engagement nevertheless, and neither married. They saw each other daily; walked and drove together and lived almost as much for one another as though they had been one up to the time of Ward's death, which was in 1872. On his death he left his home, 23 Bond street, together with two others near by, to Miss Partridge.

Miss Partridge always regarded the home as sacred. She hired caretakers, instructing them to see that each room was dusted daily and to keep everything as much as possible in the shape in which it had been left. She visited the house almost daily for twenty years and more and refused admission to all other persons.

The other two houses were rented at constantly advancing rates, and plenty of offers were made for No. 23, but to all of them she was deaf. Finally the house was torn down to make room for a modern business building.

GAVE CLERK THE CREDIT.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon Tells Why He Didn't Write His Speech.

Writing of the possibility of Hon. Joseph Cannon succeeding General Henderson as the speaker of the house of representatives, the Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press relates this incident:

"That was a mighty good speech of yours, 'Uncle Joe,'" said a friend to him a few days after Mr. Cannon's address on national finances in the house had appeared in the Congressional Record.

"Yes, Courts made a very good speech," was the response. Mr. Courts is the accomplished clerk of the appropriations committee.

"Why, did Courts compose that speech?"

"Certainly," was the response of Mr. Cannon as he lighted a cigar. "You could easily tell it was not mine, for all of the sentences were finished." The genial Cannon thus jokingly referred to his well known failing of neglecting to complete his sentences in a speech. He is usually so full of his subject that he does not take time to more than suggest an idea and then rush into another sentence without completing the first.

Cavapped Dollar Bill in the Mail.

Strange things go through the mails every day, but it remained for a New Yorker to add one more to the list, says the New York Herald. A carrier attached to Station A was surprised to find among letters in a box a one dollar bill, bare of any wrapping, but on which a two cent stamp had been affixed and an out of town address written on a card pasted on the bill. During forty years in the postoffice service the carrier never before heard of a greenback forwarded in this manner. He believed it was unusual in that condition, and there is a question whether the sender, if he could be found, would not be liable for defacing currency. Inasmuch as cancellation of the stamp would not defeat the currency further than had been done, it was decided to forward the money.

DEFENDS SMART SET.

Mrs. Burton Harrison Thinks It Not So Bad as Painted.

ANSWER TO COLONEL WATTERSON

Regards His Attack on New York's Four Hundred as Too Seathing. From a Few Disgraceful Cases, Printed Broadcast, She Says, It Is Unfair to Judge Society.

In answer to Colonel Watterson's criticisms of New York's Four Hundred Mrs. Burton Harrison writes in the New York Journal.

I have no intention of attempting to break a lance against Colonel Watterson. Hundreds have tried it and bit the dust of the arena. I assume that he delivers his clarion blast in all conscience, because he believes in the truth of his assertions and desires to fight for the regeneration of the society that, rightly or wrongly, stands for an example to our land. But I have always thought that John the Baptist, crying in the wilderness against the sins of his contemporaries, must have been excited among them some very rebellious sentiments.

Among my personal acquaintance with a large number of the people who make up the offending class I fail utterly to detect the habits of "licentiousness" alleged. If they exist, it is fair to suppose that all signs thereof could not be effectually concealed in daily intercourse with decent people.

One is aware of various instances where men and women notorious in defying public opinion have seen the bar fall before them here and have subsequently gone abroad and been received in elect circles, among the best. Those who have chosen to remain in the society of New York and Newport and brave the decree against them have never surmounted the obstacle of social detestation.

I also protest against the wholesale arraignment of young girls as "exalting their unclean lives and thoughts" in places of public resort. When I reckon up the list of fresh, charming, carefully nurtured and admirably trained young women that each year launches upon society, when I recall how their days are filled with lessons and classes and exercises of physical culture unheard of in the past generations of our country, when a girl came out "finished" at eighteen and then danced and sang her way into early matrimony, I feel convinced that our brilliant critic has been dreaming a bad dream.

It is impossible for a girl of healthy mind to part with her precious privilege when she is kept so wholesomely occupied as is customary with our debutantes.

The athletics that go hand in hand with her "accomplishments" must be a preservative of morals. At any rate, I speak truth when I say that I have never met any of those obnoxious creatures called "tough girls" in private life.

They must confine themselves strictly to exhibitions in the restaurants alluded to. Alas for the future of our civilization if such are to be the wives and mothers of our reigning set to come!

Again, as I look at the dwellers in the great houses of New York and Newport, whose names are daily recited upon the rosary of writers for the press, family after family passes before the mind's eye whose number contains no one such offender against morals and manners indicated as being among the leaders of this "voluptuous principality."

Some of them are dull, respectable people, who indeed seem quite out of place in the rush of fashionable habit—people who look as if they would like nothing so much as to yawn outright and be done with vain endeavor.

Some of them are dull, respectable people, who indeed seem quite achieved when they have built a great house and filled it with fine furniture and fighting servants who crowd the family to the wall or send them miserably wandering into other great houses where they have no topics of conversation but their wrongs at the hands of their dependents.

Others frankly live for the amassing of luxuries and such display of those belongings as shall entitle them to rank higher than the givers of the entertainment that as a record breaker went before. Many of them are utterly devoid of interest in the surroundings they have created at such a cost, wandering to and fro on the face of the earth until obliged to reoccupy the homes from which they hope soon to escape again.

Bret Harte's Last Poem.

A poem by Bret Harte, believed to be the last he wrote and found after his death, is printed in the October Harper. The poem was written at the time of Queen Victoria's death and is as follows:

When your hair bowed heads together
To the pole,
And the globe swung out from gladness
To eclipse,

When your drums from the equator
To the pole,
Carried round it an unending
Funeral roll,

When your capitals from Norway
To the Cape,
Through their streets and from their houses,
Trailed their craps,

Still the sun awoke to gladness
As of old,
And the stars their midnight beauty
Still uncolored,

For the glory born of goodness
Never dies,
And his face is of half masted
In the skies.

Local Stopping Places for the Newark and Granville Street Ry.

To our patrons of the N. & G. Ry. Co.—Beginning October 1, the cars will stop only at street corners and at places along the line where yellow signs have been placed, which read, "Local cars stop here," and cars will not stop for passengers between these signs, or on curves, and will always run to the opposite corner of intersecting streets in the direction the car is running. This with the help of the public will enable the cars to make better time, and keep moving on the schedule running time, and give the public much better service. This is a custom that is adopted in all cities and street railroads and we trust the public will cooperate with us in this move. 9-29-42t

CAPT. SMITH

Oldest Fireman in Newark Gives Dinner to Laddies of Central Fire Department.

Captain James H. Smith banqueted the members of the Central Fire Department Monday at a dinner given at Schaller Brothers restaurant. Captain Smith is the oldest living fireman in the city today. On the banquet table was an old leather water bucket, on which was attached a card bearing the following inscription:

"The first legislation in the city of Newark, O., to prevent and put out fires, was passed in the eighteen thirties, when the town trustees authorized that each owner of a house and lot should purchase of Father Plato one leather water bucket, and have same hanging on portico, and at the alarm of fire should take same to the spot to be used in line, to the canal or one of the public cisterns, to feed the hand fire engines."

This bucket was owned by the late Hon. Isaac Smucker, and is now in the Licking County Pioneer Historical and Antiquarian Society's possession.

STOP THE RACING—Considerable complaint has been made to the authorities of the dangerous and unlawful practice that a good many parties engage in of racing on Hudson avenue. This is a practice that is accompanied with great danger to life and limb and to citizens who are quietly driving on Hudson avenue, and it should be stopped at once. The Advocate has called attention to the danger of this practice time and time again, but will state once more that Hudson avenue is not a public race course, and that people have no more right to speed their horses on this street than on any other street in the city.

FALL OF TRAIN—Max Dold who lives on Seventh street, fell off a Pan Handle freight train Sunday morning, but was not severely hurt. He was taken home in Bowers & Bradley's ambulance.

NOTICE—The R. C. I. T. A. Locals 178 and 179 will have a called meeting in the convention room of the Court House this evening at 8 o'clock.

Wednesday, Oct. 1, will be Ladies' Day at the County Fair. It

ROLLING STOCK EQUIPMENT
MEN GET TOGETHER

Another Big Combine With Forty Millions Capital—Local Railway Personals of the Day.

Chicago, Sept. 29—A big combination of manufacturers of all kinds of equipment used in the manufacture of railway rolling stock is forming with a capitalization of $40,000,000. The deal is being engineered by Charles F. Quincy, assisted by C. S. Leeds, brother of the president of the Rock Island road.

Quincy and Leeds are in New York perfecting the plans for the combination. Concerns interested in the deal manufacture springs, doors, trucks, roofs and brake shoes.

The following companies are supposed to be included in the deal: Q. & C. Co., Chicago; Joints Car Door Company, Chicago; National Railway Specialty Company, Chicago; American Brake Shoe & Foundry Company, New York Equipment Company, St. Louis.

Mayer Wants Damages.
Brother Stephen P. Mayer a member of the local Barbers' Union, (formerly of Newark) who fell on the ice while he was returning home after a meeting of his union last winter, has brought suit against the city of Columbus and the Schlitz Brewing company for $10,000. Brother Mayer says that a watering trough located in front of the Schlitz saloon at the corner of Fourth and Russell streets was allowed to overflow and that as a result of ice which formed on the sidewalk he fell to the ground, breaking his left ankle.—Columbus Trades Record.
